

Alissar Rady: MD, Family Medicine Specialist, MPH
National Professional Officer at WHO country office, Beirut.

A National and International consultant on major public health issues, worked on reproductive health program with international associations (OPEC, UNFPA, World Bank and UNESCO regional offices...)

Held several positions at WHO: Medical Officer, Manager, National AIDS control Program (NAP), WHO-Lebanon, Medical Officer, Programs Coordinator, WHO-Beirut and Technical advisor for the Rene Moawad Foundation on Youth Development Project (funded by the World Bank for the CDR)

Dr Rady is a coordinator and lecturer of the modular course on “Principles of health Education”, at Lebanese University, School of Public Health.

She contributed in the design, implementation, organization and review of publications and research executed by WHO office in Beirut.

Dr Rady is an advocate for patient safety and performance improvement through all the workshops organized by the WHO at national level.